Tai Chi, Qigong & Meditation Classes

Tai Chi and Qigong are self-care practices which enhance Body, Mind and Spirit unification. These gentle Chinese exercises improve relaxation skills, mental focus, and physical alignment. Research has shown that regular practice is beneficial for balance, stress reduction, strengthening the immune system, joint concerns (arthritis), building endurance, flexibility, and alleviating chronic conditions.

The Tai Chi Fundamentals® Program

offers a simplified, systematic approach for mastering Tai Chi basics that maintains the integrity of traditional form and principles. The program introduces components of Tai Chi practice that foster health of mind, body and spirit. This program can serve as a complete exercise program and can provide solid basic training for those who wish to progress to the more complex forms of traditional Tai Chi.

The Traditional Yang Style Tai Chi

forms incorporate complex movement patterns throughout the entire sequence which have martial applications. The traditional Form developed by Master Cheng Man-Ch'ing is expertly designed to massage the whole acupuncture energy system of one's body. Tai Chi principles promote harmony in human interactions and as students progress the element of Tui Shou (Sensing hands or Push hands) will be introduced. Tui Shou is a gentle way of practicing the martial applications of Tai Chi. It incorporates aspects of letting go of one's ego to better know oneself and for successful conflict resolution.

All classes include Qigong and Meditation exercises.
